

I think that your attempt to stifle business is completely ridiculous. If the market will support it, and there is no destruction to the environment, then you should simply stay out of it. There is a reason that we are paying for XM Radio, and that should be enough to make the strigns a little looser than traditional radio services.